

1st semester

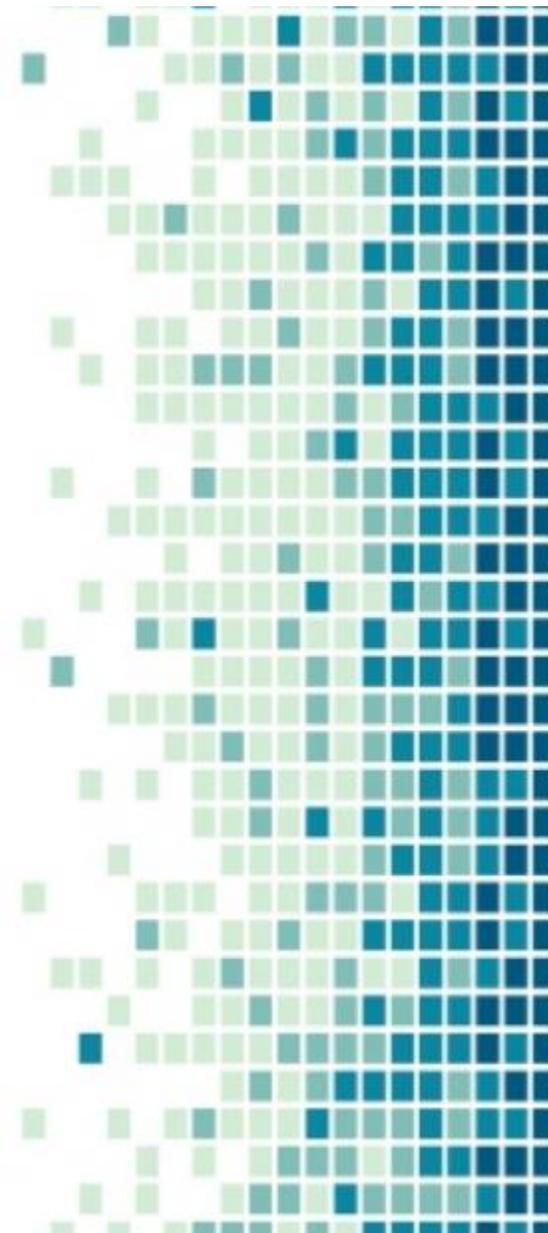

Topic 12: Change and Technology

Hardware

Hi-tech objects

Computers

Desktop

Laptop

A desktop computer may also be called a PC, while it is common to see a laptop called a notebook.

Kindle

The Kindle is a kind of e-reader. You can read e-books on it. Some of them have a touchscreen.

Meme

Something that is widely shared online usually because it is funny. It can be a picture, a phrase, or a video. Essentially, it is an idea.

Video Streaming

This means watching TV shows, movies, or other videos online. Instead of downloading, you watch something live. The most popular service is:

You Tube

Search Engine

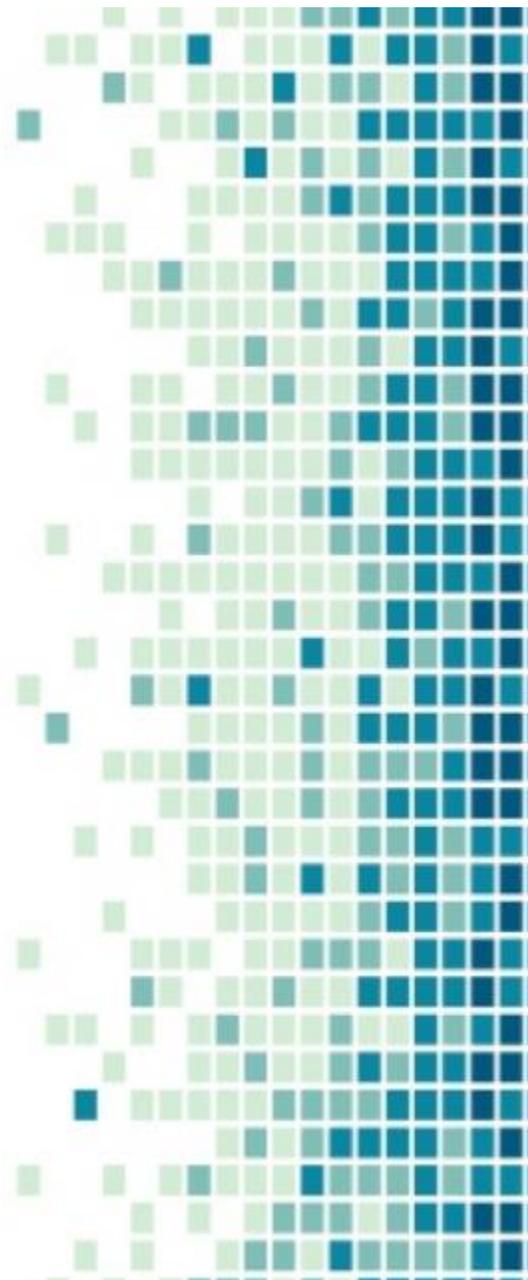

This is a website for searching online. The most popular is Google, and it is often used as a verb meaning “search”.

Other Vocabulary

Verbs for talking about the internet

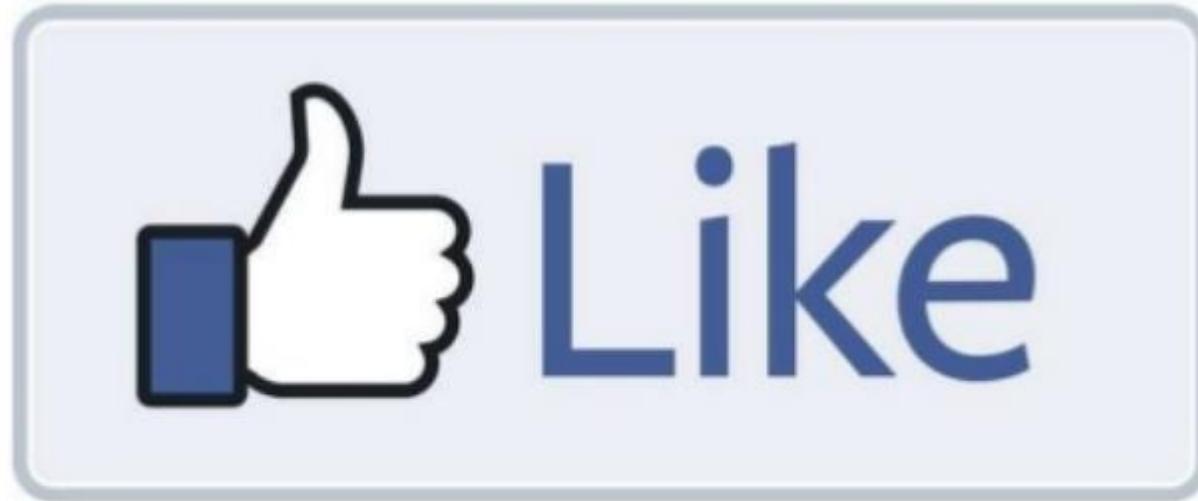

A large, colorful graphic with the word 'SHARE' in white, bold, uppercase letters. The letters are set against a background of overlapping, multi-colored speech bubbles in shades of blue, purple, pink, orange, and green. To the right of the graphic is a vertical column of a grid of small squares in various shades of blue and green, resembling a digital or data visualization element.

This means to put something on your social network account for others to see.

Example

- Sarah shared a really funny video last week.
- I'm trying to get more subscribers to my YouTube channel. Could you share my new video, please?

This means to give your approval of something online, usually on social media.

Example

- Hey everyone, don't forget to like my new video and subscribe to the channel.
- My ex-husband liked all my new Facebook posts. What do you think that means?

This means to make a contact on a social network. You can also just use “friend” as a verb. Likewise, you could use “add” without friend.

Example

- He added her as a friend on Facebook last week.
- Do you mind if I friend you when I get online later?
- She just added him earlier today. Was that a good idea?

