COMMON TRAVEL PROBLEMS AND HOW TO DEAL WITH THEM

1. Getting Sick

Problem: Falling ill far away from the sympathy of your loved ones in a country where access to healthcare may be limited or impossible can be scary and isolating.

Solution: Always pack a first-aid kit that's also equipped with any additional medication you anticipate needing so you can treat yourself if possible.

2. Feeling Lonely

Problem: It's normal to feel lost and confused on the road especially if you're going it alone, but it's a travel problem that can feel overwhelming at times and have you reconsidering all your plans.

Solution: Bite the bullet and get out there to start communicating with people if you want to feel less alone.

3. Language Barriers

Problem: Not being understood in foreign climes is proving to be more of a hassle than you'd anticipated.

Solution: It's never too late to brush up on your language skills; making even a very basic effort will endear you to locals and make your trip far more enjoyable in the process.

4. Losing Your Stuff

Problem: you could have sworn you had your phone/passport/camera at that last bus terminal or hotel. And now you don't.

Solution: Planning ahead for possible losses is smart; make copies of your passport before you set off, store the address and number of your foreign embassy in your phone or bag in case of emergencies and always split-store your money.

5. Delayed / Missed Flights

Problem: Nobody likes being stranded in an airport because of a delayed flight or missed connection and it can be one of the most expensive travel problems to put right.

Solution: Be sure to keep in contact with your airline both before, and on, the day of flying. Check the status of the flight online and also through the airline app so you're always aware of any changes to your itinerary.
